

Isar für ALLE

The Isar is a key public open space in Munich, yet not equally accessible to all. Older people and individuals with limited mobility face barriers such as steep paths, limited access, and missing infrastructure. At the same time, rising temperatures and increasing privatization make accessible, climate-responsive public spaces more important than ever. The project explores how the Isar can become more inclusive while contributing to urban climate adaptation.

